Celebrate Fifty-fifth Wedding Anniversary

On Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Rennie celebrated their 55th wedding anniversary when about forty friends and relatives gathered at their home to offer congratulations.

The evening was spent in singing and short talks by many of their friends. They were presented with a bouquet of baby 'mums' by the Evangelical Ladies' Aid and a bouquet of roses and carnations by members of the family.

They were married on November 21st, 1883, at New Hamburg, Ont., and they came to Didsbury with their family 36 years ago. They lived on their farm west of Didsbury until about ten years ago when they retired and moved to town. Mr. Rennie will be 82 years of age while Mrs. Rennie is 76 and both are enjoying good health.

They have three sons, Percy and Wilfred of Didsbury and Herbert of Calgary; two daughters, Miss John Carlson in California and Alice at home; and five grandchildren.

The Canadian wheat crop of 1938 is placed at 381,100,000 bushels in the Dominion bureau of statistics November estimate, a reduction of 10,333,000 from the September estimate, and is accounted for principally by a decline in the estimate for the province of Saskatchewan. The wheat yield there is now placed at 132,000,000 bushels, compared with September's estimate of 143 million. The wheat yield of Western Canada was placed at 324 million bushels, compared with September's estimate of 334 million and production last year of 159 million.

The annual musical festival of the Olds school division No. 31 will be held at Didsbury next spring and will include the towns of Olds, Didsbury, Carstairs and Crossfield as well as the rural schools in the division.

At the re-organization meeting at Didsbury Monday night, Dr. H. C. Lissemer was elected president, Mrs. J. E. Huget and Miss Evelyn Lissemer, vice presidents, and J. W. Halton, secretary treasurer, all of Didsbury. On the executive committee also were Inspector N. P. Crispo, Olds; Mrs. J. Boorman, Didsbury; M. MacDonald, Carstairs; Crossfield S. D. will be asked to appoint a member to the committee as will also the Teachers Association. J. H. Robertson was added to the committee as representative of the Divisional Board.

This year the festival will eliminate individual recitations in all groups and will limit entries for individual numbers and duets to two from each rural school in each event and five from town schools.

Organize Rosebud Hockey League.

Didsbury is going into the hockey picture again and have joined the Rosebud Hockey League which was formed at a meeting held at Innisfail this week.

Innisfail, Bowden, Didsbury and Carstairs will comprise the league and a schedule of two home games at each town has been arranged.

First games will be held on Dec. 7th with Didsbury at home against Innisfail, and Carstairs at home against Bowden.

Officers appointed were: W. Ure, Innisfail, president; Len. Berscht, secretary; Tom Royds, Geo. Julian Bowden, Tony Peterson, Innisfail and Beckner of Carstairs, executive.

Vandal Damages Rural Mail Boxes

It has been brought to our attention that some person or persons are doing damage to the mail boxes on the rural route.

We would draw attention to the fact that these mail boxes are part of the postal system and any person caught damaging them are liable to be severely dealt with by the postal authorities of the Dominion of Canada.

Health Society Annual Meeting

A meeting of the Didsbury Health Society was held on Friday last with a fairly good attendance.

Three new directors were added to the board making a board of five as follows: J. Weibe president; Hugh Roberts, vice president; E. Landeen, Spillman and Dave Sinclair as executive.

It was arranged that Hugh Roberts should be at the Rosebud Hotel from 10 to 2 p.m. on Saturday to receive dues and applications for membership. New members will be received until Nov. 30th when the books will be closed.

H. Roberts, the secretary, asks dues be mailed to him and anyone wanting particulars should phone 2107.

School Election for Large District

The light vote which was polled on Tuesday of last week, showed a decided lack of interest in the larger School District which has been forced on the electors by the Department of Education.

It is reported that at Mowers only the election officials turned up at the poll while at Clovermount, only 6 cast their ballots, at Waterloo 8 and Rosebud 11. Other polls made a better showing but in every case the voting was light.

The board elected will comprise George A. Burns, who was elected by acclamation, Jack Robertson, W. Davies, all of Didsbury; J. M. Dundas of Allingham and W. H. A. Thomas of Olds. Each of these elected is an outstanding personality in his district as shown by the majority given and they should make a very competent school board.

Following is an unofficial report of the results of the polling:

Subdivision No. 1

Splendid Concert by Junior Choir

The "Gypsy Night" concert which was presented by the Knox Church Junior Choir on Thursday evening was very successful and was more largely attended than any affair the choir has previously put on.

The choir which comprises thirty-two voices picturesquely dressed as gypsies, with the stage setting and lighting presented a very colorful scene.

The solos and choruses, which were all appropriate to a gypsy concert, were exceptionally well rendered, and great credit is due to the girls and their director, Mrs. Boorman. The soloists were Dorothy Geeson, Margaret Adshard, Lois Edwards, Florence Chamberlin and Norma Parsons and duets were given by Gladys Geeson and Betty Boorman. Jean and Mary Robertson gave a piano duet and Betty Boorman rendered a cello solo.

Several readings were given by Mrs. Huget, which were well received by the audience.

The concert has received many complimentary comments and requests have been made for a repetition so the choir has decided to give a repeat concert at Melvin Community Hall on Friday, Dec. 2.

WEDDINGS

JOHNSTON-SPENCER

A quiet wedding took place at the residence of Mr. Earl Spencer when his daughter, Ivy May, became the bride of Douglas Johnston, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. G. Johnston, well-known pioneer residents, west of town.

The bride, carrying a beautiful bouquet of pink carnations, was attended by her sister Eva, who had a bouquet of white carnations. The groomsmen were James W. Johnston, a brother. The marriage was solemnized by Rev. J. R. Geeson on Thursday, November 17th at 2:30 p.m. in the presence of a large gathering of guests, mainly members of the respective families.

After the ceremony a bounteous wedding dinner was served. The happy couple will make their home on the Bellamy place on the Dog Pound Creek west of Didsbury.

The Hospital By-Law.

In connection with the Hospital By-Law, a synopsis of which appears elsewhere in this issue, it should be explained that whereas, owing to regulations, it is necessary for the Town of Didsbury to borrow the money for the erection of a new Hospital, nevertheless the Municipal Districts of Mountain View and Westerdale are each ready and prepared to enter into an agreement with the Town of Didsbury whereby each Municipal District will agree to contribute one third of the annual debt-service installment, so that in reality the Town will only be called on to pay one third of the amount mentioned in the By-Law. The proposed Hospital is intended to be a community utility, to be erected and operated jointly by the three municipalities.

Enquiries are welcomed and explanations will be gladly given.

State Medicine's Appeal

State medicine, whether it be in the form of compulsory health insurance, compulsory co-operative medicine or a full fledged state medicine plan, in which the State would have control of the entire field and doctors, nurses and attendants would be salaried civil servants is much in the public eye in Western Canada as well as other countries of the world.

In recent years in Western Canada many organizations have gone on record in support of some form of State medicine on a province-wide basis. Other organizations have appointed committees to make a study of State medicine and all its implications and costs and in some of the provinces legislation has been placed on the statute books providing for the inauguration of a scheme of State medicine at a later date.

It is not at all surprising that the plea for State medicine, in one or other of the forms in which it has or is taking shape should appeal to the popular fancy when one remembers that behind it all is the general principle that when one or other of the mooted plans has been put into operation it will make available to all who are sick or suffering, the alleviation and remedies which medical science has to offer; that the best of medical and surgical skill will be available to all, regardless of their financial status and further, that it will, by the very nature of its scope, extend the field of preventive medicine.

The consummation of these objectives is indeed highly desirable at the earliest possible opportunity. The humanitarianism behind such plans constitutes a powerful appeal to the imagination and this is one of the factors which sway large conventions and groups to make an insistent demand for social reform of this character.

Cost Is A Consideration

Just because a project is highly desirable does not necessarily mean that it is economically feasible and this point is sometimes overlooked in the eagerness of the wish to put it into immediate operation. That there is a strong tide flowing in the direction of some form of compulsory health insurance in many countries of the world, and particularly in the democratic countries, cannot be denied, and it would appear that by evolutionary process it will be brought about in due course in many countries, states and provinces which have so far only tasted its benefits on a small scale and in a voluntary way.

Before, however, such beneficial programs are adopted and put into effect, the cost must be counted if there are to be no subsequent regrets. There must not only be a realization of what the cost will be, but also of the source of the necessary funds; in other words who is going to pay and how.

In this connection it is not amiss to point out that the cost of a province-wide scheme, no matter in what form it may be levied, can only come out of the pockets of the people of that province, at any rate until such time as it may be adopted as a national scheme. If a substantial number of the residents of a province have no resources, temporarily or permanently, the entire economic burden must in the meantime fall on the remainder of the citizens of that province. Coupling this fact with the financial condition of a large percentage of the residents of the three prairie provinces during the past few years, the reason why those provinces which have such legislation on their books have not yet put it into effect is not far to seek.

Ability To Pay A Factor

In Saskatchewan where there is, as yet, no state medicine legislation enacted, a compulsory "co-operative medicine" project designed to provide "free" medical, nursing, hospital and medicinal supplies to the entire population is finding some favor. The cost per capita is estimated by its sponsors to be $10.82, including a provincial government contribution, or an annual average levy of $48.69 for the average family. How many families in Saskatchewan could this year meet an additional levy of $48.69 on top of other tax levies, or could have done so last year when approximately half the population was on relief? It is a safe venture to assert that neither in 1937 nor in 1938 could such a project have been financed out of current levies.

In Greenbelt, Maryland, where a co-operative community is being operated under the New Deal, an annual levy ranging from $78 for an unmarried man to $117 for a family of six is being collected from the residents to pay their contributions to the Greenbelt Health association which guarantees for its members medical care, preventive and remedial, presumably at cost.

In New Zealand where a full fledged national health service comprising free medical service, with free hospital and sanatorium treatment for everybody, free mental treatment in institutions, free medicine and free maternity care, including the cost of maintenance in special maternity homes, the probable annual cost is estimated by G. H. Maddex, a British government actuary, at $15,000,000 without taking into account substantial additional expenditures of hospital boards for which funds are secured by municipal levies, and it is announced that in making his report Mr. Maddex added the warning that "once hospital accommodation was given free of charge there might well be a greatly increased demand for it, which would increase the cost."

Medical Science Advancing

Will Do Better Work If Another War Should Come

More good tidings! From military medical circles comes the announcement that "the next war" will see greater achievements in the preservation of manpower by medicine and surgery than any previous war in history.

Where Medical Science will shine in particular is in the protection of wounded soldiers from death by infection, the maintenance of good health in the camp and the field, and the repair of shattered bodies. More wounded men will be able to return to the slaughter after brief hospitalization than ever before.

The greatest achievements, according to the source from which this information comes, will be in the preventive field. It is nice to know in these worrisome days that at least somebody's efforts toward the prevention of something have a strong chance of success.—Quebec Chronicle-Telegraph.

Empire Press Meeting

Conference To Be Held In Ottawa In 1940

The council of the Empire Press Union accepted the invitation of J. H. Woods, chairman of Canadian section, to hold the sixth Imperial Press conference in 1940 in Canada. The conference proper, lasting three days, will be held at Ottawa and it is planned delegates will tour the Dominion from coast to coast.

At the council meeting it was agreed Canadian section would be asked to arrange the conference for August or September on the grounds this would be more convenient than the early summer.

The first Imperial Press conference was held in London, the second, held in Canada in 1920, lasted seven weeks, including the cross-country tour. The third conference was in Australia, the fourth in London and the fifth in Cape Town, South Africa.

Gift To Premier King

Explanation Settles Any Doubt About Owner Of Laurier House

Prime Minister King owns Laurier House in Ottawa. Many people think that Laurier House belongs to the Liberal party and is to be the official residence in Ottawa of the leader of the Liberals.

The best explanation of the status of Laurier House comes from none other than Mr. King himself, who says: "Laurier House was given originally to Lady Laurier. It belonged to her, not to Sir Wilfrid. It was left to me by Lady Laurier in her will. I paid the succession duties at the time I became the owner of the house, which I named Laurier House, and, as the owner, have paid taxes ever since."

That should make it clear to anyone who may have wondered just who owns Laurier House in Ottawa.—Windsor Daily Star.

Vicious Attack

Only Poor Marksmanship Of Japs Saved British Gunboat Sandpiper

Bad Japanese marksmanship alone saved the British Gunboat Sandpiper from the fate of the United States gunboat Panay, bombed and sunk by Japanese 'planes last December 12, according to eye-witness stories told by members of the Sandpiper's crew.

All asserted that the British flag painted on the Sandpiper's bridge was clearly visible when the gunboat was attacked by six Japanese 'planes.

"I dread to think what would have happened if a direct hit had been scored," one of the officers declared. "We probably would have gone to the bottom like the Panay."

Officers and other members of the crew said the gunboat had been lying at anchor for a full 48 hours before the attack.

"The Sandpiper was lying peacefully at anchor waiting to take on an American naval unit for a courtesy call when a heavy drone overhead announced the arrival of Japanese 'planes,' one sailor said.

"Six heavy bombers, flying in perfect arrowhead formation, passed low overhead. Hardly had they passed when, to the consternation of everyone, they suddenly veered around and, with engines roaring, the whole flight made a mass dive at the Sandpiper.

"Those on board and on land were horrified. They just stood helplessly where they were. They were unable to understand what was happening, or what was likely to happen.

"When the 'planes reached what seemed only a few feet above the Sandpiper each machine released one bomb, which sped toward the ship with a swishing noise. Fortunately, all but one bomb fell very wide of their mark.

"The bomb that did the actual damage did not actually hit the Sandpiper. It exploded so near, however, that fragments rattled aboard, tearing holes in two cabins and smashing down the hatch. The 'planes then flew away."

Colonial Representation

Suggestion Made That Britain Should Follow Italy's Example

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express suggested Great Britain should follow Italy's example in granting representation to her colonies in the nation's councils.

The Fascist grand council in Rome decreed the North African colony of Libya should become an integral part of Italy. France for many years has given her colonial representation in the French parliament.

"If Jamaica and Trinidad had sent representatives to voice opinions at Westminster during the last few years their lives would have been less troubled," the paper said. "We would have heard about their grievances from the floor of the House of Commons, not from newspaper reports of disturbances in those colonies." The paper cited other cases where an airing in the commons might have facilitated a settlement.

"There is no longer any practical reason why the colonies should not be represented in London," it added. "We can link this country and our African and West Indian possessions by means of air so that the journey is reduced to a matter of hours."

How to Ease

CHEST COLD MISERY

FIRST—massage throat, chest, and back with Vicks VapoRub at bedtime. This relieves the distress.

THEN—to make its long-continued action last even longer, spread a thick layer of VapoRub on the chest and cover with a warmed cloth.

LONG AFTER sleep comes, VapoRub keeps working—loosens phlegm—eases muscular soreness or tightness—clears air-passages—eases coughing—relieves local congestion.

Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

According To Science

Milk Is More Digestible If You Drink It Quickly

The Commentator Magazine says one of America's pet superstitions about milk gets a swift kick from science. Time and time again people have warned you to drink your milk slowly and in sips so that it will digest more easily. However, recent clinical experiments conducted in Germany prove the opposite to be true. The scientists find that milk drunk slowly engenders more extensive curdling and is therefore more indigestible than if drunk at a faster rate. A group of large milk curdles, it seems, is more easily acted upon by the digestive juices than a large number of small ones. This just goes to show how smart you really were as a youngster when you wanted to down that glass of milk in one gulp and mother would not let you.

The Newest Wrapping

Old Shoes Made Into Artistic Material In Beautiful Shades

A process of turning old shoes of waste leather into a durable and beautiful transparent wrapping has been discovered, McGill University scientists disclose.

They have been advised that the waste leather is first steam-treated and then subjected to several chemical processes which turn it into a transparent wrapping, colored to lend beautiful shades to the articles it contains. The new type wrapping, they said, can be made very cheaply, because the basic product used is waste material.

Many Ingredients

A 200-pound human body contains one-fourth ounce iron, one-fifth ounce sugar, one and eight-tenths ounces salt, 24 pounds coal (in the form of carbon), 10 gallons water, one-tenth drop iodine, one and eight-tenths pounds phosphorus, 112 cubic feet oxygen, 60 cubic feet nitrogen, 561 feet hydrogen, and seven pounds lime.

Unnecessary Work

For more than a century occupiers of a mountain farm at Cresseely, six miles from Pembroke, have tramped a mile to fetch drinking water. In times of drought even the well failed, and then water had to be brought from Redberth, three miles away. A water diver has just discovered a spring—at the farmhouse back-door.

Relations Conference Decides Empire Trade Is Not Enough For Our Needs

General belief that trade within the British Commonwealth of Nations was not sufficient to meet the external trade needs of any member nation, was expressed at the recent British Commonwealth relations conference, held at Lapstone, Australia.

Professor George E. Britnell, head of the University of Saskatchewan political science department, a member of the Canadian delegation, reported the conference was generally agreed that no policy of strict inter-commonwealth trade was either possible or desirable. Co-operation between the member nations of the British commonwealth was desirable, but should be carried beyond the scope of the union, it was felt.

Professor Britnell made clear that the conference was conducted along "unofficial" lines. No decisions were made or resolutions passed. Each delegation, however, presented briefs outlining the position of the various nations in the British commonwealth with relation to the other nations and the commonwealth. This clarified issues and gave visiting delegates insight into the problems of other countries within the empire.

There was general agreement that an improved standard of living was the main factor concerning an upturn in inter-commonwealth trade. It was realized, however, that higher living standards could not be effected immediately. Each delegation was agreed that there was no more room within the commonwealth for any extensive migration program.

Realization Great Britain and the various dominions could not be regarded as having common problems, was well founded in the minds of the representatives of Canada, India, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Elre, Newfoundland and the United Kingdom, Professor Britnell said.

It was admitted present economic and political trends pointed to even greater diversity of purpose in the future. Any attempt to bind the various nations together along political and economic lines was believed futile.

Discussing co-operation, the delegates were fairly unanimous in the contention such measures as the Ottawa agreements should be extended to include outside nations. Denmark was cited as an example of a friendly nation which might be driven to Fascism if such agreements were not extended.

Pioneer Of The Atlantic

Metal Replicas Of Brig Jean Form Part Of Memorial

To most people interested in the history of Canada the name of the brig Jean is familiar. She was the little vessel, only 73 tons register, which sailed for Canada from Greenock in 1819 under the command of Captain Alexander Allan, thus initiating the trans-Atlantic service which became the Allan Line, which was later taken over by the Canadian Pacific.

The other Sunday a memorial consisting of chancel rail and gates, was dedicated in the Church of St. Andrew and St. Paul, Montreal, to the memory of the late Hugh Alexander Allan and his wife. By a happy thought, as the late Mr. Allan was a prominent member of the Canadian branch of the Allan family, metal replicas of the brig Jean were introduced into the memorial.

It is indeed appropriate that the little vessel should be thus commemorated in a church which is so closely identified with Scottish life in Montreal. Canada's Weekly, London.

Needed Another

The game was very one-sided. Just after half-time the captain of the losing team approached the referee. "I say, can we have another ball?"

"What do you want another ball for?" the astonished referee asked. "Well," grumbled the captain, "those chaps want that one all to themselves."

The beak of the sword-billed humming bird is longer than the rest of its body.

An Unofficial Survey

Shows Scandinavian Sailor Fares The Best At Meal Time

Scandinavian sailors feed best; British sailors worst of all the navigators of the seven seas who find their way to the port of Montreal, an unofficial survey during the navigation season indicates.

Those who consider the British Jack Tar the happiest man afloat will be surprised to learn that in the matter of meals the seamen of several nations are better off. Even the crews on Greek freighters get choicer diet, it is claimed.

With abundant, well-cooked meals, the men who man Scandinavian ships have no reason for complaint as far as diet is concerned, it is stated. Probably these who fare next best at meal-times are the American sailors. Crews of Soviet Russian merchantmen are well fed.

Apparently, economy campaigns in the British merchant service have reduced both the quantity and quality of fore-castle meals. It is also alleged that a certain amount of "grafting" in the purchase of ship supplies survives from the old days of "salt horse" and maggoty ship's biscuit.

Meals on German ships are said to be good, but despite well-filled stomachs, the sailors of the Reich are the most discontented with their lot of any. When German ships have docked at Montreal and at the grain ports of the lower St. Lawrence this summer, it has been necessary to take extra precautions to prevent wholesale desertions.

Reason for the Nazi seaman's desire to remain ashore in Canada is said to be the rigorous discipline maintained on board vessels sailing under the swastika. A Nazi skipper is as much a dictator in his restricted realm as is Herr Hitler at home, and he rules with an iron hand.

Provisioning some of the East Indian ships which call at Montreal presents unusual problems since the crews often represent two or more religious groups with different dietary rules.

Certain of these codes require that only fresh-killed flesh be eaten, so that some of the vessels taking on supplies sail with herds of livestock penned on their decks awaiting slaughter on the high seas.

Humanity To Animals

England Has Provided Adequate Protection In Event Of War

Every precaution to protect men, women and children of European cities in event of war is being taken—and being taken for granted. What of animals? Even while the cables and wireless were crowded with the developments on which the issue of war or peace hung, came dispatches that the safety of animals was not being overlooked, in England at least.

London has developed a gas-proof kennel for cats and dogs and started an air-raid protection fund for pets. Animals were objects of human solicitude in those tense hours.

Man's humanity to animals is more credible than mankind's inhumanity to men, and in it is proof of the existence of motives which will one day predominate in all human experience.—Christian Science Monitor.

Credited With Invention

Cornish Miner Made Hat Which Is Known As "Billycock"

While in some way a Norfolk farmer named William Bowler gave his name to that type of hat, Englishmen credit its invention to a Cornish miner named William Coke, who, seeing the style of headgear worn by miners in a district of Germany, not as an article of street wear but to protect their heads from falling fragments while at work, made a hat of somewhat similar design for ordinary occasions. These hats came to be known as "Billy Cokes." In course of time the name was corrupted to "billycocks", and to this day, Britishers will go into a store and ask for a "billycock" hat.—St. Thomas Times-Journal. 2280

To Test Wheat

Several Varieties Of Rust-Resistant Wheat Sent To England

Destined for England where they will undergo exhaustive milling and baking tests, 1,590 bushels of specially grown and threshed wheat has been sacked and loaded aboard specially lined cars. The shipment is a further step in efforts to improve rust-resistant wheat strains of the Indian Head experimental farm and the Winnipeg rust laboratory.

Leeds is the ultimate destination of the wheat, where tests will be carried out. In the shipment were three varieties, all resistant strains: Thatcher, "975-1" and "1097".

All the grain was grown at Indian Head experimental farm. The "1097" variety has been grown for one season, while the "975" strain has been sown and harvested at Indian Head for two years.

Of the two newer rust-resistant strains that so far have their identity known only by numbers, "975" offers definite promise. Explaining aims in developing the wheats and in making shipments for test purposes to the Old Country, W. H. Gibson, superintendent of the experimental farm, stated the objective was to produce a wheat rated high on all points, particularly yield, appearance, resistance to disease and of high suitability from a milling and baking standpoint.

In "975", he stated, it was felt there was a wheat that offered definite promise. It had "won its spurs" on all points in observations at the experimental farm, and now must pass the final exacting milling and baking tests overseas. As England is the chief market for Canadian wheat, the English standard must be reached and satisfied, Mr. Gibson said.

Some idea of the extent of the shipment could be gained, it was stated, in the fact that identical shipments were going forward now from Morden and Portage la Prairie—all bound for that critical Old Country test.

The three resistant strains will be taken by the millers and processed to produce bread. Whatever blending is necessary will be done by the Old Country millers, and exact results will then be made known.

Shipment of the 1,590 bushels from Indian Head was through the board of grain commissioners.

Actual shipment of the wheat for comparative tests in the Old Country represented another definite milestone in the search going on in laboratory and field for "the perfect wheat," Mr. Gibson said. A Canadian milling and baking test of "975" wheat had turned out satisfactorily, it was stated.

Dentists Endorse Toothpick

Emily Post and other etiquette arbiters may not agree, but the toothpick has the blessing of the dental profession. Dr. Isador Hirschfeld, of Columbia university, told a dental convention the toothpick should be restored to the favor it once enjoyed because toothpicks help prevent pyorrhea and other mouth diseases.

Impossible To Escape It

Even In Movies People Are Reminded Of World's Unrest

Fleeing the reality of international conflict, says the The Printed Word, a group of harassed ladies and gentlemen recently decided to attend a movie, where they hoped to have their minds diverted from facts to fancy. They selected a movie that had been favorably reviewed as having all the elements of successful comedy, without a foot of serious matter in it. The name of the movie was "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife."

Comfortably seated in protecting darkness, the group began to watch and listen to the make-believe world of Gary Cooper and Claudette Colbert.

The horrible reality of Europe began to be almost forgotten. For the first time in days and nights of anxiety, members of the group chuckled, laughed. Everything was going fine.

Then it developed that on the screen Gary Cooper was having trouble sleeping. He told Claudette about it. She proposed a remedy.

"The thing to do," she told him, "is to put yourself to sleep by spelling some hard word. You lie in bed, and you slowly spell out the letters of this word, starting with the last letter. Between letters you yawn, breathing deeply. It is a sure way of putting yourself to sleep."

The group of seekers-after-unreality was watching and listening attentively, the miserable world outside the theatre now completely forgotten.

Then Miss Colbert said: "A good hard word to use for the purpose of spelling backward in this way is Czechoslovakia."

Must Be Standard Size

Strict Regulations Cover Cases For Exporting Canadian Eggs

The latest amendment to the Egg Regulations of Canada decree that no Canadian eggs are to be exported out of Canada unless they are packed in Canadian standard cases in packing material approved by the Dominion Minister of Agriculture.

Canadian standard cases must be made to contain 30 dozen eggs and be constructed of clean, dry, and odourless woods. The ends and centre partition must not be less than seven-sixteenths of an inch thick, and the sides, top, and bottom not less than one-quarter of an inch thick. For export out of Canada, the cases must be wired at both ends.

It has been estimated that 19,500,000 people attend British theatres weekly. For every two who attend, there are three persons who do not.

Has The Right Idea

Alfred Dennis, New Jersey Bach Society president, should gain a lot of support for his protest against the "swinging" of music by Bach and other classical composers on the air waves. Dennis would suspend the license of any radio station that "violates the canon of decency by permitting the syncopation of classics."

Small Potatoes.

Apparently the provincial government have abandoned the old highway between Didsbury and Carstairs and the highways department have removed the road signs.

It was to be expected that they would remove the highway number signs, but we consider it pretty small on the department's part to remove the other signs. The hills, corners and curves are still in the same positions and although the traffic is lighter the signs would still have guided the motorists who use the road.

The World of Wheat

By H. G. L. STRANGE
Director "Crop Testing Plan"

"Agriculture in the first place, is not only an art but an important and noble art. It is, as well, a science, which teaches that crops are to be planted in each kind of soil, and what operations are to be carried on, in order that the land may regularly produce the largest crops. Equipped with this knowledge the farmer should aim at two goals: profit and pleasure; the object of the first is material return and of the second enjoyment."

This remarkable piece of wisdom setting out in memorable words the very heart and soul of agriculture was written by one of the greatest agriculturists the world has known, Marcus Terentius Varro, Senator of Rome about 50 B.C., just over 2,000 years ago, in his book entitled "On Agriculture."

The pleasure and enjoyment of farming, of which Varro writes is no doubt that exalted feeling which comes to those who in their work are striving to excel, who are aiming to achieve the highest possible skill in their craft, and who experience such a love and pride in their work that they become veritably inspired with a desire to attain perfection in itself.

Fortunate indeed the farmer who has received sufficient material return, and who can experience to the enjoyment of which Varro speaks.

Following factors have tended to raise price: Very small wheat surplus remaining in Australia -- Russia faced with acute food shortage -- Winter wheat sowing backward in Germany -- Mexico buying U.S. wheat -- More frost reported in Argentina -- Crop prospects in Australia continue to deteriorate -- Delays in harvesting root crops in Germany.

Following factors have tended to lower price: British Government purchases large quantity of Rumanian wheat -- Rice harvest makes good progress in Texas -- Increase in South African corn crop -- Beneficial showers in Argentina -- Italian seedling completed, conditions excellent -- U.S.A. winter wheat crop improving after recent rains -- Large surpluses of meats, cheese, butter and fruits in U.S.A.

Mountain View Notes

The Mountain View W. I. held their November meeting on Tuesday, Nov. 17th, at the home of Mrs. W. Shultz. Fourteen members and a large number of visitors were present. President Mrs. Ed. Blain conducted the business meeting in her usual capable manner. Mrs. B. Atkinson, convener for education and better schools, gave a very enlightening paper on the new Larger School Unit. This paper was of unusual interest to all present and gave a very comprehensive outline of the new plan which will take effect Jan. 1st, 1939.

The next meeting will be the annual and will be held Wednesday, December 7 at the home of Mrs. Mac Woods. Members are requested to come early and to bring an article for the Christmas bazaar which will be held after the business meeting.

Mrs. E. Frulling of Calgary was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. St. Clair last week.

Mrs. Scotty St. Clair (Calgary) and Mrs. W. Bruce (Vancouver) visited with the former's parents last week.

The weekly skits put on by the various patrols are proving to be instructive as well as amusing. This week the Wolves have the floor and should produce a good effort. Dec. 1st Scouter Thomas and "Asm" fill the bill. Members of the troop committee and parents are invited to occasionally visit the Scout headquarters on meeting nights and see the boys at work and play. This invitation also applies to parents of boys in the Wolf Cubs. It is planned to hold a Parents' Night on a future date, but the occasional visit, nevertheless, will be appreciated.

The Editor, Pioneer.
Dear Sir:

An item appearing in the news columns of last Thursday's Herald attracted my attention and out of reading same I got a hearty kick.

It seems that at recent meeting of the Calgary Board of Trade one of its members spoke for a short period re the solving of some of the problems confronting those persons engaged in agricultural pursuits (said persons being commonly known as farmers).

This man expressed it as his opinion that a great many of the sufferings and inconveniences affecting such individuals would be alleviated were there more experts stationed throughout the country for the purpose of dealing out free advice to these ignoramuses concerning the management of their affairs, etc.

Perfectly sincere was he in his convictions and wound up with a strong appeal to our already over-worked Edmonton government for its support in the placing of such officials in the field.

Well now here is something, to know that after all the worries and heartaches we had so foolishly put up with, what the province really needed was a few thousand more farmer advisers and everything would be O.K.

Honestly, it sounded too good to be true. So I armed myself with a bundle of statistics and a lead pencil and sat me down to prove something—or nothing.

But to my amazement no matter how I figured, the result was always the same. The man was right. Out of our vast population of non farmers a mere 86,037 per cent were actually employed in the noble calling of farmer advising. And of the remaining 13,963 per cent? The answer to that was even more startling. It would appear that, aside from minding their own business those unpatriotic drones were doing absolutely nothing toward the up lifting of us poor down-trodden soil-tasters. To not a single one of them could we look for a few helpful hints so essential to our happiness in showing us how to pay our taxes and the instalments on the radio. So that's that.

Small wonder the country is on the road to hell and ruin!

—Lew Wigglesworth.

"Libeled Lady" Sues for Five Million Dollars

Four outstanding stars glitter in the film firmament at the movies this weekend when the Metro Goldwyn-Mayer hit "Libeled Lady" will be screened.

Jean Harlow, William Powell, Myrna Loy and Spencer Tracy unite their exceptional acting ability in one of the most entertaining films of recent years, a drama with a newspaper angle that is as eye-catching as the current headlines of a front page.

The picture would be no little entertaining had it but one of the distinguished stars heading its cast; with four, it quadruples its potentialities and provides one of the most delightful programs to be presented this year.

THE Eastern industrial worker likes Western food and he buys plenty of it — when he's working.

For instance, take an item like meat. Eastern sales alone brought the West nearly $20,000,000 in 1936. Sale of 10,000 tons of butter brought in nearly $5,000,000 more, while grain products, poultry and eggs meant another $15,000,000 in Western pockets.

That's why it's so vital to the West to keep the Eastern worker busy. And one way you help do it is by the purchase of a Canadian-built car, for an active Automotive Industry keeps many other industries humming — and all their workers and their families must be fed.

Of course, your money goes East — but it comes back to you in no uncertain fashion: in the purchases of your best customer, the industrial East, that aggregate over $40,000,000 a year.

Mrs. Becky Ewen, national organizer of the friends of the Mackenzie Papineau Battalion, said that about 800 Canadians are being demobilized from ranks of the Spanish Loyalist forces and will be in their Canadian homes by Christmas.

Mrs. Ewen said the committee was making plans to rehabilitate the men, and the committee is campaigning for $50,000. She said General Franco, leader of the insurgent forces, had declared unwillingly that Canadians had proven the most stubborn fighters in the entire war in Spain.

Detectives In Medical Work

Have Discovered Some Dyes Will Cause Skin Diseases

Skin diseases that no one ever heard of are breaking out through industry. Why they appear and the medical detective work that catches them were described at New York to the American College of Surgeons in a report on occupational skin diseases by Louis Schwartz, of the United States Public Health Service. They do not always remain confined to workers. Take the story of butter yellow, a dye. It had never been known as a skin irritant, Dr. Schultz said.

"In fact, it was thought so innocuous that it had been used to color oleomargarine," he said.

The health service skin disease detectives discovered its new role when they were called in by a manufacturer of wrist watches. Complaints, and law suits, were charging that his wrist watch straps were causing skin troubles.

There was a new feature about these straps. They were jet black and sweat-proof. The health detectives sent them to both a leather research institute and to a skin specialist to see whether they contained a skin irritant.

Both reported back there was no irritant.

Next, the medical detectives went to the makers of the leather and the dyes. They injected wrists with samples of the leather both dyed and undyed. Only the dyed leather showed bad effects.

There were several dyes. Skin tests of these showed that butter yellow was irritating when it got on the skin. The yellow had been used along with a black dye to produce the jet black shade. The black dye alone gave only blue black.

When butter yellow was eliminated in favor of a different yellow dye, there was no more strap trouble, and one more chemical was tagged with a warning in medical-industrial archives.

Often the trail is more difficult because all the chemicals used are harmless to the skin.

East And West

Facing Of Realities All Round Seems Necessary

Most business men in the East wish to see a resumption of immigration. They wish to see our farm lands all taken up and cultivated. Logically, then, they should wish to see Western agriculture sufficiently prosperous to make it attractive to new settlers. The way not to do that is to make Western producers packhorses for other interests of one kind or another. Even more important than bringing in new settlers is the need for preventing too many of the farmers' sons from leaving the land, by giving them something to live for and showing them that they have some prospect.

If the Western people are to be told that they must fend for themselves, it is quite clear that some of our Eastern friends will have to change their ways and stop trying to impose tribute which makes conditions in these provinces harder and more discouraging. It is said that we should face realities. That is sound advice. There should be a facing of realities all around.—Winnipeg Free Press.

TAKE THE LEAD OUT OF YOUR LEGS

Get Oxygen in Your Blood and You'll Get the Pop that Sends You Bounding Up the Stairs

People who smother to death die because oxygen has been completely cut off from them. Just as surely you are slowly smothering if your blood lacks red corpuscles. Red corpuscles are your oxygen-carriers. They carry the oxygen you breathe in to every part of your system. Without enough oxygen-carrying corpuscles, your kidneys, liver, stomach and bowels slow down. Your skin gets pale, flabby, often pimply. ## New Magic Spray

Spectacular Results Are Claimed In Growing Plants

A "magic" new spray which grows larger flowers was announced to the United States Academy of Sciences. The bigger flowers are only one of the spectacular results of spraying this mixture on plants. It also makes possible new hybrids—that is, crosses in breeding plants—realizing a long-sought goal of agricultural scientists.

The spray is an emulsion of oil, mixed with colchicine, which has been a standard medical remedy for gout for nearly 2,000 years. Colchicine is extracted from meadow saffron.

A year ago Dr. Albert F. Blakeslee, of the Carnegie Institution of Washington's station for experimental evolution at Cold Spring Harbor, New York, announced to the academy discovery that colchicine would cause strange changes in plants. It doubled their chromosomes, and the substances that govern heredity.

Since then the oil spray has been developed as a means of applying the colchicine and Dr. Blakeslee, with E. W. Sinnott and H. E. Warmke, reported the first practical results, obtained on more than 40 species of plants.

The oil holds the colchicine on the plant tissues until it can penetrate. Buds or young stems are sprayed. On the sprayed parts the leaves become a deeper green. Fruits become shorter and stouter.

The flowers grow larger. In some species this bigness of blossom is so great—sometimes 25 per cent.—that the spraying has immediate commercial value for floriculturists. The seeds from these larger flowers are larger and fewer.

The big flowers and "stoutened" parts grow on the same plant alongside normally small flowers and slender parts. The seeds from the colchicine-sprayed part of the plant grow permanently larger flowers, and a plant that is permanently different from its parent.

A Popular Pastime

Thousands Of Women Take Out Permits For Fishing

Add fishing to the mounting list of mannish things that women are doing.

"It's amazing," said Charles Jackson, acting director of the United States Bureau of Fisheries, as he angled for statistics in a newly completed report. Many States, he explained, allow milady and her children to fish without bothering to buy a license.

"Yet our figures show that 89,000 women and children, armed with tackle and pole, bought permits and assaulted this heretofore stronghold of the outdoor man," he said.

The acting commissioner said most of the women did their fishing accompanied by their husbands, sweethearts, fathers or brothers.

"Nevertheless," he added, "there are quite a few women who like nothing better than to get away from it all and go out for some quiet fishing."

The Sure Cure

Mrs. Neighbor: "Mrs. Blogg's Alice used to have such a sweet tooth, and now she's in the confectionery factory she won't even look at a sweet."

Mrs. Nextdoor: "My! I wish I could get my old man a job in a brewery."

Believing that flies are attracted by certain colors, a Pennsylvanian has invented sticky fly paper made in red and blue blocks instead of the customary yellow.

Botanists cannot explain why the branches of poplars grow upwards, while those of willows grow downwards.

When you've earned your way past the alarm clock stage, you are so old you can't sleep mornings anyhow.

Black bears are capable of climbing trees more rapidly than squirrels.

For old people, hard-boiled eggs are about as digestible as clay pigeons. So says, Dr. C. F. Martin in his article in the last issue of "Health" on how to attain a normal old age. Periodic health examinations and prevention of illness are his double recipe and he cites diet as one of the principal factors in living long and comfortably. To live we must eat, he points out—to live long we must eat wisely.

Dr. Martin says "old people cannot stand the gastronomic feats of youth. The average man eats twice as much as he needs—and, like excess fuel to a boiler—wears it out. Eat slowly—Fletcherize—eat in moderation. If he avoids the risky gradients of repletion and the sharp corners of hyper-acidity—the octogenarian can "gang his ain gait." It is quantity that does most harm.

"With age, bodily growth has ceased, the furnace needs less fuel—so the diet must be reduced. We can easily tell that in various ways. This presenile obesity, which is so common, is merely the result of neglect of preventive medicine. We must avoid growing fatter as we get on in years. The human stove wears out from the task of cooking food for millions of extra fat cells.

"But it is all very well to advise on diet, which is only carried out when one can supplement it with character, self-control restraint and moderation.

"A sorry fare, free from care, is perhaps a dull life, and one is apt to get introspective and hipped on the subject of diet.

"And so I am not going to tell you in detail what kind of diet you should take. You know already that meats are for the young, and starches for the old; that cereals are good, stewed fruits and salads useful, and bread still remains the staff of life; that any of the dairy products are the finest old-age food; that milk, preferably pasteurized, has all the elements needed; that cream cheese is better than Stilton; and that butter, buttermilk and junket are useful."

The art of living, this eminent Montreal doctor says, is not a preparation for dying, but a proportioning of work and leisure, of labor and recreation—such a control of eating, drinking and making merry that man need not die tomorrow. And so prevention is the order of the day.

Tragedy Of The Sea

Ship's Cat Is Rescued When Vessel Founders After Storm

The story of a ship's cat saved by the captain, who popped it into a laundry bag and dove into the sea from a blazing schooner, was disclosed in New York when the rescued crew of the Pioneer arrived on the liner American Banker.

The Pioneer, a Gloucester schooner owned by Captain Hans Milton, rocked helplessly for three days 400 miles off Halifax after a hurricane, and finally foundered.

With the ship taking water, the crew soaked blankets in gasoline, ignited them and ran them to the top of the mast. The schooner caught fire, and was burning brightly when the American Banker hove to on Oct. 2 and rescued the crew of five.

The last man off was Captain Milton, who dived with the cat and the ship's sextant.

The cat was an unnamed mascot which Seaman Carl Calson of the crew bought in Norfolk, Va., for a nickel from a stranded sailor.

Captain Milton said an unidentified vessel had passed and ignored them 24 hours before they were rescued.

School Teacher: "Johnny, can you tell me the difference between perseverance and obstinacy?"

CHAPTER VI.—Continued

Hammond swiftly crossed the lowland toward Loon creek. The workers along the stream passed in a blur. Far ahead he sighted two men walking along the opposite bank. Hammond began to run. Then, disregarding the rough bridge ahead, he plunged into the stream. Waist deep, he swirled through it and clambered out the other side. Then, dripping, he rushed forward.

Lew Snade turned his weak face at the sound of his approach. Then suddenly gray-faced, he begged:

"Let me alone—let me alone!"

Hammond had growled, his big arms had outstretched; now he was on the man, bending him in his grasp. "Give me that money!" he commanded.

"Look here!" Kenning exclaimed, as he turned back. "What's all this about?"

Hammond gave no heed.

"Hear me!" he shouted at Lew Snade. "Give me that money!" "You're all wrong. I haven't got any money!" The weak-featured Snade had caught the distended wrists of the miner and was hanging to them desperately. Hammond bulged his heavy shoulders; Snade rose in his grasp, legs dangling queerly, like those of a dummy.

"Shall I choke it out of you?" he asked. Quickly he threw the man from him, then rushed him for a new grip, his muscular fingers wide-spread. Snade struck out at him, wildly; Hammond gave no evidence that he felt the blows. Now his hands, distorted with muscle, plowed deep into Snade's throat.

"Look out, Jack!" Kenning shouted. "You'll kill him!"

"What of it?" growled the prospector. Then to Snade, "Give me that money!" Lew Snade writhed helplessly, gasping. "You know what I mean; that money you stole from Jeanne Towers." Lew Snade hesitated only a second longer. Then he raised his weak hands and pointed to his throat. Slowly, Hammond relaxed his grip. The man staggered about, with sagging knees. "Well, get it! Don't stand there stalling. Get out that money."

Snade, still reeling, pawed for his pockets. Currency, the nuggets, the phial of gold dust; slowly he passed them over into the waiting hands of Jack Hammond. The prospector turned to Bruce Kenning.

"What's this rat to you?"

"Why—nothing. We were just talking about a job."

"Be sure it's never anything more than that." Black with rage, he turned to the gasping Snade. "Now you—get over there on the Alaskan side. And stay there. Do you understand?"

Slowly the man began to move away, in the direction of the uncompleted buildings of Around the World Annie's dance hall.

A half hour later, his clothing still soggy from the crossing of the creek, he walked slowly down toward Kay's claim. Something of calmness had come now, calmness and amazement. For the first time in his life, he had wanted to kill a man. He did not know why. All he could realize was that a blind, murderous rage had held him, until at last Jeanne Towers' money was safe in his hands and he was hurrying back to her cabin with it.

CHAPTER VII.

Around the World Annie strode what passed as the streets of Sapphire Lake upon an important mission. Summer had come now, with its hot days, and almost incessant light; Annie was dressed for it. Timmy Moon had brought her quite a wardrobe on his last trip and Annie was displaying a sample. A long period of expenditure was over; now she could announce to this little northern world that she was about to reap the profits.

Now and then Around the World Annie paused in supreme survey, for she was here on business. Preceding her, as she went through town, were two men with hammers, an arm full of placards, printed in Vancouver, and a mouthful of tacks. Gradually they were turning the drabness of cabin exteriors to screaming blasts of white and scarlet.

Thursday, July Fourth

"Wrote that all my myself," explained Around the World Annie, to a quickly thickening throng of admirers. "Ain't bad for an old gal, eh?"

Among the many who paused to read was a stocky, beaverlike man whose eyes recently had borne the shadows of deep worry. All had not gone well for McKenzie Joe during these last few months. He had been forced to watch a tremendous change engulf the young man whom he long ago had come to regard with an overpowering affection.

But McKenzie Joe never had been diplomatic. He was doing more in that direction now than ever before. At least, he kept his mouth tight when every atom of his supremely honest nature shouted to him to have a show-down and proclaim that he was tired of being dealt cards from a stacked deck. Something was wrong; he felt sure of it. His distrust of Kay Joyce and Bruce Kenning amounted almost to mania.

Not that Joe blamed Jack for being blind. It was a wholly natural condition; the North makes a man snow-blind or woman-blind and either affliction is hard to cure. Jack Hammond was not the first person McKenzie Joe had seen take to climbing trees at the will of a woman. He could remember a few experiences of his own. All prospectors can.

The placards announcing Annie's great premiere were still fresh in his mind as he turned into Jeanne's store.

"Listen," he announced, "I need some new duds. Can you get 'em by plane?"

"If you'll give me your measurements," Jeanne replied. "I've got an order going in on a plane tomorrow." "That's easy. Forty-four chest for the coat, thirty-six waist and thirty-one legs for the pants. If the sleeves are too long, I'll turn 'em up." Then, without a break. "How's business?"

"Rushing," answered Jeanne, writing down the measurements.

"Fine," McKenzie Joe looked sourly into the distance, only to turn back as quickly. "Say," he asked, peering hard into her face. "You and me always have been good friends. I think a lot of you."

"Thanks, Joe."

"If Jack Hammond had any sense—"

"Do you have any particular color you'd like for this suit?" Jeanne broke in.

"Well, I guess not. I'm kind of partial to blue. Not that dead blue, you know. Something kind of lively."

She laughed. "You can see electric blue a long ways."

"That's my color. I want 'em to know I'm coming. And get me a couple of shirts. White, I guess. And a tie with some red in it—not all red. I'm going over to Around the World Annie's on the Fourth of July."

"Wearing red, white and blue," chuckled Jeanne.

"Might as well be neighborly," he grunted and started away.

Jack Hammond was at home when he arrived, with a poster he had ripped from a cabin wall.

"Have you seen it?" he asked. McKenzie Joe nodded.

"But There's Somebody Else, Stronger'n I Am."

"I've ordered a new suit for it." Jack stared. "Are you going over?"

The older man pretended a casual air. He reached for his shovel and pick, preparatory to moving up the trail toward the test shaft.

"Yeh, I figured I might drop in and slap a few drinks under my belt."

Jack Hammond's jaw fell.

"You're not going to do that, Joe?" His tone bore the portent of impending calamity. McKenzie shouldered his pick and shovel.

"What's wrong about that? You went down to Seattle and got drunk, didn't you?"

"But—"

"I figure if one partner's got a right to get drunk, the other one's got the same privilege."

"Yes, I guess you have, Joe." Hammond's features were clouded. The elder man started away, then paused.

"Say, I seen you on the upper flat yesterday afternoon with a couple of men. What were you doing?"

It was the last question Jack desired to answer.

"Oh, just looking around."

"In other words, figuring out a place to test that wild-eyed theory of yours, that the Big Moose swung over toward the B.C. hills. That it?"

"Well—since you put it that way."

"And you didn't take me into your confidence."

"I've tried to talk to you about it a dozen times," the younger man said desperately.

"And I've tried to talk you out of it. But there's somebody else, stronger'n I am."

Demand For Good Music

Is Being Met To-day By Radio And Talking Pictures

Talking pictures and the radio have already developed a musical appreciation on the part of the public which could not have been effected in 20 years of formal education. This music appreciation has brought about not only the acceptance of, but the demand for, the finest in the works of our composers.

The sound engineers who have developed recording and reproduction to its present state have made it possible to give such music to the public, for to-day the finest symphony orchestra or the greatest voice can be brought with true fidelity to the theatre audience.

With this perfect sound reproduction and an active music appreciation on the part of the public, the composer in talking pictures has the opportunity to present his work under the best possible hearing conditions, to audience whose response assures him a return which should make the field attractive to him.

But it is in the creation of the great dramatic musical scores, in the handling of operatic material, and the placing of work of great composers before the public in musicals, that the screen is doing its really important work in the field of music.

There are no domesticated bees. Those living in man-made hives are as wild as those inhabiting hollow trees in the jungle.
